Investing internationally involves additional risks such as currency fluctuations, currency devaluations, price volatility, social and economic instability, differing securities regulation and accounting standards, limited publicly available information, changes in taxation, periods of illiquidity and other factors. These risks are greater in the emerging markets. Stocks of mid-capitalization companies are slightly less volatile than those of small-capitalization companies but both still involve substantial risk and they will be subject to more abrupt or erratic movements than large-capitalization companies. In order to achieve its investment goals and objectives, the Fund may invest in derivatives such as futures, options, and swaps to a very substantial extent. Derivatives involve special risks including correlation, counterparty, liquidity, operational, accounting and tax risks. These risks, in certain cases, may be greater than the risks presented by more traditional investments and are fully disclosed in the prospectus. As of 12/31/11, the Fund invested approximately 0.00% of its net assets in derivatives (excludes forward foreign exchange contracts).

Fund holdings, sector allocations, and geographic allocations are subject to change and are not a recommendation to buy or sell any security.
